Season 2 Episode 84 - Reading for Semira

Hannah Macintyre: Hello and welcome to Mediumship Matters! Today, I'm bringing you something new and exciting—a live, unedited recording of a one-on-one reading.

As I always say, one of the best ways to develop your mediumship is to watch and listen to readings. And, honestly, it's even better when it's not for you—because you can focus on how the information unfolds without the emotional attachment.

So, in this episode, you'll hear my reading for Samira, where we connect with her incredible grandmother (who was an absolute force of nature!) and follow up with a spirit guide reading. Let's dive in!

Connecting with Samira's Grandmother in Spirit

Hannah: Hi, Samira! Thank you so much for agreeing to be my first-ever live reading on the podcast. This could go horribly wrong—we have no idea what's going to happen, but let's go for it!

Samira: Hi, Hannah! Thank you for having me. I'm really, really excited!

Hannah: Fantastic! We've already had a quick chat before hitting record, and we're going to open up to the spirit world. You've asked to connect with your nan, so let's see what happens. Then, we'll move into a spirit guide reading—and I've got Andromeda, my crystal ball, ready to go. Let's dive in!

Bringing Through Evidence & Spirit Personality

As soon as I tune in, I feel a lady stepping forward. Given that I'm reaching for Nan, I believe this is her—but let's see what the evidence brings!

She has a big personality—a large presence with a loud, bold nature. Would you understand that?

Samira: Yes, absolutely!

She was a larger lady, and I can feel her bosom—not to start by talking about your Nan's bosom, but I can't ignore her presence! She was fiercely loving, but also opinionated—she'd drop a comment that made everyone wince, and apologizing wasn't really her thing.

Samira: Oh my God, yes! That was totally her!

She loved children, didn't she? She was the kind of woman who would swoop in, take a baby, and tell you exactly what you were doing wrong. Not in a mean way—she just knew best.

Family was everything to her. I also feel like she had family overseas—does that make sense?

Samira: Yes, completely.

Her Fierce Love & Watching Over You

She's making it so clear how much she loves and celebrates you. It's passionate, fierce, and all-encompassing. She is so proud of everyone in the family.

She was also a very tactile person, wasn't she? She would adjust your clothes, pat you, fix your hair—just very hands-on with her love.

Samira: Yes, 100%.

She cooked for the family, didn't she? Feeding people was her way of showing love, and you could never leave her house without feeling stuffed.

Did she cook in huge pots, making traditional meals from scratch?

Samira: Oh yes! She was known for it.

She's laughing now because she still watches when you cook her recipes—and don't think for a second that you can cut corners!

Acknowledging Family in Spirit & Her Passing

She's making me aware that there's a male in spirit with her—possibly a son or someone younger from her family line. Would you understand that?

Samira: Possibly—I'd need to check.

She was very independent, and struggling with illness toward the end was so difficult for her. She hated asking for help—and even when she accepted it, she had to control how it was given!

She also shrank physically, didn't she? Her energy became muted, and she stopped eating as much, which was heartbreaking for someone who loved food so much.

Samira: Yes, she lost so much weight toward the end.

She's showing me bright colors and a big hat—perhaps from a wedding or a big event. Do you know what she's referring to?

Samira: Yes! She wore a huge hat at my auntie's wedding—she was so proud!

A Message of Love & Reassurance

She wants to acknowledge that you weren't able to say goodbye. She says, "It doesn't matter." She knows how much you love her, and she doesn't hold any sadness or disappointment.

She's with you all the time. You lean on her for support, but she wants you to know—she only brings what you already have within you.

You are so much stronger than you realize.

Spirit Guide Reading & Samira's Path

Now, moving on to the spirit guide reading... I see a mountain—you've climbed one, but there are more ahead.

Your journey hasn't been easy. It's been an explosion of awakening, changing everything—your beliefs, your relationships, your understanding of life.

You are a healer, through and through. Whether in Reiki, your work in the NHS, or just in daily life, you are constantly healing. Your energy draws people in, and even strangers are naturally drawn to your light.

But you must set boundaries. You cannot pour from an empty cup.

You have so much potential ahead—mediumship, enhanced psychic abilities, and deep healing work. The path is yours to shape.

Final Thoughts & Closing the Reading

Samira: I'm absolutely blown away. I've held onto guilt about missing my Nan's passing for so long, and now I feel I can let that go. She was so much more than her last moments. Thank you so much.

Hannah: I'm so glad this resonated! Your Nan was an absolute force of nature—and she will always be with you.
