Hannah Macintyre:

Hello, and welcome to Mediumship Matters with me, Hannah Macintyre. Today, I am super excited to be joined by the lovely Sam Pirt, psychic medium extraordinaire! Sam has previously interviewed me, and now it's time for a role reversal. Welcome, Sam!

Sam Pirt:

Hi, Hannah! It's a pleasure to be here. Thank you for having me.

Hannah:

I'm thrilled to have you! To kick things off, tell us a bit about yourself and your journey with spirit.

Sam:

Sure! I'm Sam Pirt, a psychic medium who works with all the clairs—I don't rule any out because spirit certainly doesn't. I work from the heart with the intention of love and healing. My journey started about 16 years ago during a paranormal investigation. That experience led me to mediumship circles, and, well, here we are today!

Hannah:

Amazing. So, you started with ghost hunts, or should I say paranormal investigations? Do you still do them?

Sam:

Yes, I do, though I prefer the term "paranormal investigations." It's less about hunting and more about connecting. I'm part of Paranormal Research York as a medium. For me, it's about communicating with spirits tied to historical locations—uncovering their stories and honoring their experiences.

Hannah:

Love that! So, do you work alongside tech teams?

Sam:

Absolutely. The tech complements mediumship. Devices can validate the presence I'm sensing, like EMF meters reacting when I indicate a spirit's location. But the real essence is the message from spirit, not just the flashy lights.

Hannah:

Agreed. Spirits aren't there to perform parlor tricks. They have stories to tell. Any memorable experiences?

Sam:

Oh yes! One standout was at Nottingley Town Hall, where we did table tipping. The table moved the entire length of the hall—incredible energy. Another time at the Grand Opera House in York, we captured footsteps and even singing from an empty auditorium. It was surreal.

Hannah:

Wow! Do you ever get spooked?

Sam:

Oh, definitely! And honestly, I love it. Getting spooked isn't about dark entities; it's just a spirit asserting their presence. It's like an energetic "Hey, I'm here!" It's part of the adventure.

Hannah:

Haha, relatable! Sometimes it's just our imagination running wild. But that thrill is part of the fun.

Sam:

Exactly. It's natural to feel that way, and it keeps things interesting.

Hannah:

So, your journey took a turn towards Buddhism. Tell us about that.

Sam:

Yes, after an intense start with mediumship, I needed grounding. I found Buddhism, which helped me develop mental discipline and self-acceptance. I even did a one-month retreat, chanting 120,000 mantras! Buddhism taught me about transforming negativity into compassion and finding liberation from suffering.

Hannah:

That's profound. Spiritual growth often involves personal transformation beyond mediumship skills.

Sam:

Absolutely. It's all interconnected. Self-acceptance is key, especially in mediumship. You can only fully connect with spirit when you've embraced yourself.

Hannah:

Beautifully said. Speaking of spiritual connections, what do you believe happens when we die?

Sam:

When we pass, we become pure energy—part of the light. Spirit isn't bound by physical limitations and can be in multiple places simultaneously. There's no such thing as being trapped; spirit is limitless.

Hannah:

I completely agree. It's about liberation, not confinement. Now, do you believe in reincarnation?

Sam:

I do, but I don't think it's a one-size-fits-all process. Some spirits reincarnate, some don't. Time doesn't exist in the spirit world, so everything happens simultaneously. It's mind-bending but fascinating.

Hannah:

Yes! The idea that all lives happen at once really blows the mind. It challenges our linear thinking.

Sam:

Exactly. And that's the beauty of spiritual exploration—always evolving.

Hannah:

Sam, this has been amazing. Your insights are inspiring. Where can people find you?
